Students doing part-time job has become a trend recently. Some students find a part-time job for they want to help their parents. Their family's finance situation forced them to do so. They have to work in order to reduce their parents burden on their tuition or something else. Other students do a part-time job not because their family's finance situation, but they need money to buy things they want such as basketball shoes, smartphone or luxurious product. Their parents think these aren't necessary things but they still want to buy them. So they find a part-time job. Still others do a part-time job in sake of they want to increase their social experiences. They want to get in touch with the society earlier and can learn a lot of things while working such as how to interact with costumers, boss and colleagues, or how to deal with tricky problems they encountering at work.

If I want to have a part-time job, my reason will be the third one in the previous paragraph — I want to increase my social experiences. Living under my parents' protection since childhood

I don't know how to interact with strangers and I don't know what I will meet when I am a society freshman. Since family and schools are so warm-hearted that everyone cares about your feeling and you won't be neglected, the real society is cruel. Teachers and parents always tell us how different between school, family and society. I won't be protected by my parents the whole life. The earlier I experienced and get acquainted with the society, the more independent I'll be. As a result, I would like to have a part-time job in order to adjust the society earlier and gaining more experiences.
